

To Whom It May Concern

I wish to strongly express my support for Baclofen (both intrathecal and oral forms) to be included in the World Health Organization's Model Lists of Essential Medicines as a treatment for spasticity in children and adults with cerebral palsy.

Inclusion on the lists helps to ensure that medications are available and affordable, but there is currently no treatment for cerebral palsy on them.

Yours sincerely

Richard Luke (He/Him)
Cerebral Palsy Programme Lead
