

GLOBAL LAUNCH

World report on the health of refugees and migrants

The World Health Organization is pleased to invite you to the launch of the first world report on the health of refugees and migrants.

The report brings together key evidence about the multitude of health challenges faced by refugees and migrants along their journeys, as a result of a comprehensive review of national, regional, and global literature.

The report presents significant information about trends, gaps, and practices in protecting and promoting the health of these populations and outlines current and future opportunities and challenges. It is an advocacy tool for health and social protection policymakers, researchers, humanitarian aid professionals and practitioners, and non-governmental organizations involved in humanitarian aid, gender, health, or migration.
