The World Health Organization (WHO) is seeking offers for National Food Labelling Compliance Assessment and Market Survey to Identify Unhealthy Food Products Marketed to Children and Adults – Sri Lanka.

Your Company Institution is invited to submit a proposal for the services in response to this Request for Proposals (RFP).

WHO is a public international organization, consisting of 194 Member States, and a Specialized Agency of the United Nations with the mandate to act as the directing and coordinating authority on international health work. As such, WHO is dependent on the budgetary and extra-budgetary contributions it receives for the implementation of its activities. Bidders are, therefore, requested to propose the best and most cost-effective solution to meet WHO requirements, while ensuring a high level of service.

1. Requirements

WHO requires the successful bidder, to carry out National Food Labelling Compliance Assessment and Market Survey to Identify Unhealthy Food Products Marketed to Children and Adults – Sri Lanka.

Unhealthy diets are a major contributor to the rising burden of diet-related noncommunicable diseases (NCDs) in Sri Lanka, particularly among children and adults. Accurate, transparent, and regulatory-compliant food labelling is a critical public health measure to enable consumers to make informed dietary choices and to support national efforts to reduce population-level exposure to excess salt, sugar, and unhealthy fats. Sri Lanka has introduced mandatory Front-of-Pack Labelling (FoPL) regulations using the “traffic-light” colour coding system for sugar, salt, and fat, alongside requirements for nutrient declarations under national food regulations. However, systematic national-level evidence on compliance with these regulations, the accuracy of nutrient declarations, and the extent of unhealthy food marketing through labelling practices remains limited. The purpose of this consultancy is to conduct a nationally representative food labelling compliance assessment and market survey to:

- Assess compliance with national food labelling regulations, including FoPL requirements
- Verify the accuracy of selected nutrient declarations through laboratory analysis
- Identify unhealthy food products marketed to children and adults
- Generate evidence to inform regulatory enforcement, policy revision, and consumer protection initiatives

Selected institution should conduct this task in collaboration with the Director Environment and Occupational Health, Consultant Community Physician (Food Control Administration Unit) and National Professional Officer (FGL) WHO country office

In this context, the Food Control and Administrative Unit (FCAU), Ministry of Health (MoH) has formally requested technical and financial support from the World Health Organization (WHO) to conduct a National Food Labelling Compliance Assessment and Market Survey to identify unhealthy food products marketed to children and adults and to generate evidence to strengthen regulatory enforcement and policy action.

WHO Sri Lanka will commission an external expert agency through an Agreement for Performance of Work (APW) to implement this activity under the technical oversight of the FCAU, Ministry of Health and WHO .

However, systematic national-level evidence on compliance with these regulations, the accuracy of nutrient declarations, and the extent of unhealthy food marketing through labelling practices remains limited.
