

Thank you for all of your efforts to date, and for your continuing efforts to secure survey responses and government sign-off in countries.

The quality of data obtained from the GLAAS surveys throughout the years has been steadily improving. The increase in quality is largely due to the data collection processes employed in each country. Quality has greatly improved due to better understanding of the GLAAS survey and processes involved for country implementation, including wider stakeholder involvement, more information becoming available, data use at national level, and high-level interest and endorsement.

For this reason, we are requesting that the short form below be completed for the country that you have been involved with. For each area, please check the appropriate yellow box that best describes the process employed or documentation received/used and fill out the short answer questions. Please return the form to glaas@who.int along with your GLAAS survey submission, data consent form and country feedback forms by the 15 December 2018.
