Health in All Policies (HiAP) is an approach to public policies across sectors that systematically takes into account the health implications of decisions, seeks synergies, and avoids harmful health impacts in order to improve population health and health equity. It improves accountability of policymakers for health impacts at all levels of policy-making. It includes an emphasis on the consequences of public policies on health systems, determinants of health and well-being.

The Global Network for Health in All Policies (GNHiAP) is an initiative launched by five governmental collaborators that will work jointly to strengthen and institutionalize HiAP and facilitate its implementation. The network will help countries to achieve all health related SDG targets and move towards Universal Health Coverage.
