WHO is seeking for a qualified, eligible and competent proposer for the Strengthening Health Statistical Metadata for Priority Program Areas 2026 to Support One Data Indonesia (Satu Data Indonesia, SDI) initiative, including the development, harmonization, and implementation of standardized health statistical metadata across priority programme areas.

Purpose

The purpose of this activity is to support the Center of Data and Information Technology (referred to as Pusdatin) Ministry of Health (MoH) of Indonesia, in strengthening health statistical metadata through the consolidation, updating, and harmonization of existing metadata, as well as the enhancement of the SATUSEHAT Metadata platform and supporting technical guidance, in accordance with national standards established by Statistics Indonesia (Badan Pusat Statistik, BPS).

This activity aims to ensure that health statistical metadata remains aligned with evolving national priorities, including the RPJMN 2025–2029 and sectoral strategic plans, and can be consistently applied across programmes. It also aims to strengthen data consistency, interoperability, and integration across health information systems, while supporting the implementation of the SATUSEHAT platform and the One Data Indonesia (SDI) framework. Furthermore, the activity seeks to improve the availability and accessibility of updated and harmonized metadata through the SATUSEHAT Metadata portal, enabling its use as an official reference across programmes and sectors for evidence-based decision-making. This includes strengthening metadata for priority programme areas such as health financing, to support improved analysis, integration, and use of health expenditure data within the national health information system.

The key objectives include:

- a. consolidate, update, and harmonize existing health statistical metadata for priority program areas in 2026. This includes primary health care and community (health screening, health promotion), communicable diseases (pneumonia, diarrhea, hepatitis, vaccine preventable diseases, vector-borne diseases and zoonoses), health financing (e.g. health expenditure, financing flows, and related indicators), as well as other indicators aligned with The Ministry of Health Strategic Plan (Renstra) 2025-2029;
- b. review and update previous metadata for priority program areas such as nutrition, maternal and child health (with a focus on stunting and immunization), communicable diseases (tuberculosis, HIV/AIDS, malaria, leprosy), health facilities and health workforce to ensure continued relevance with evolving health transformation priorities and national policies;
- c. strengthen the SATUSEHAT Metadata platform and its supporting systems, including improvements to metadata management processes, structure, and usability, as well as the development of technical guidelines and supporting documents to ensure standardized implementation across programs;
- d. ensure alignment with national standards (BPS) and the One Data Indonesia framework, supporting interoperability and cross-sector data use.

Background

As part of Pillar 6 of Indonesia's Health System Transformation agenda (i.e. Health Technology Transformation), the MoH has developed and launched the Indonesia Health Services (IHS) platform, known as SATUSEHAT, to facilitate data exchange and interoperability across health information systems in Indonesia.

Despite this progress, several challenges remain, including the large number of government-owned health applications that are not yet fully integrated, duplication of data collection across systems, the absence of standardized data structures and data dictionaries, and inconsistencies in metadata across programmes. Standardized statistical metadata is therefore essential to ensure data consistency, improve data usability, and support interoperability across systems.

At the national level, the Government of Indonesia has established the One Data Indonesia (SDI) framework, which regulates data standards, interoperability, metadata, and reference codes. In this context, while SATUSEHAT has adopted global standards such as HL7 FHIR, alignment with national statistical standards, particularly those established by BPS, remains critical.

In particular, strengthening metadata for health financing data is increasingly important. Health financing information, including National Health Accounts (NHA) and related datasets, plays a critical role in linking resource allocation with health system performance and population health outcomes. However, differences in data structures, classifications, and metadata standards continue to limit the comparability and use of health expenditure data. Strengthening metadata and data mapping approaches is therefore essential to support more consistent analysis and integration of health financing data within the broader health information system.

Since 2022, Pusdatin has progressively developed health statistical metadata across multiple programme areas. The initial phase (2022–2023) focused establishing the foundation, including metadata structures, initial inventories, and the development of the SATUSEHAT Metadata platform for priority areas such as nutrition, maternal and child health, communicable diseases, health workforce, and health facilities. This was followed by the 2024–2025 phase, which expanded the scope to additional programme areas, including non-communicable diseases, mental health, pharmaceuticals, medical devices, and environmental health, alongside further development of the metadata platform and initial drafting of metadata governance regulations.

These efforts have resulted in a functional metadata repository (<https://satusehat.kemkes.go.id/data/metadata>), standardized templates, and a growing inventory of indicators across programmes. However, as the metadata was developed across different phases and programme units, variations in definitions, structures, and levels of completeness remain. At the same time, evolving national priorities, including the RPJMN 2025–2029 and updated sectoral strategies (Renstra), require adjustments to existing indicators and metadata to ensure continued relevance. In 2026, the focus will shift from expansion to consolidation and improvement. The activity will cover priority programme areas, including primary health care and community (health screening, health promotion), communicable diseases (pneumonia, diarrhea, hepatitis, vaccine preventable diseases, and vector-borne diseases and zoonoses), health financing (including health expenditure, financing flows, and related analytical needs) to be defined in line with updated priorities.

Furthermore, the SATUSEHAT Metadata platform, while already established, requires further enhancement to support improved metadata management, updating processes, and usability across programmes. Strengthening technical guidance and operational procedures is also necessary to ensure consistent implementation across units.

Building on this progress, the next phase in 2026 will focus on consolidating, updating, and harmonizing existing health statistical metadata, while also strengthening the functionality of the SATUSEHAT Metadata platform and supporting the development of technical guidelines. This is essential to ensure that metadata can be consistently applied, updated in line with national priorities, and effectively used to support interoperability, data integration, and evidence-based decision-making.

Annex H: Sustainable Procurement Questionnaire (optional)

Sustainable procurement, which includes environmental, social and economic factors, is one of the Guiding Principles of WHO Procurement and in order for it to be implemented requires the collaboration of its suppliers.

Suppliers wishing to do business with WHO are expected to read, accept and agree to comply with the WHO Policies and the General and Contractual Conditions as identified in the WHO Procurement website. In addition, suppliers are expected to adhere to the principles, and meet the standards, set forth in the UN Supplier Code of Conduct, the UN's expectations on the areas of labor rights, human rights, environmental standards and ethical conduct.

In order for WHO to have a better understanding of where suppliers stand on these areas, suppliers are required to complete the following questionnaire. WHO understands its suppliers are at different stages of implementing these standards and expects them to progressively be enhanced in line with the Code's continuous improvement principle. As such, while replying to this questionnaire is mandatory, WHO will not be evaluating the input received, unless specifically indicated on the solicitation document's evaluation criteria section. WHO however reserves its right to verify the completeness and accuracy of information provided.
